The last month was pretty quiet in the Historian's office. I have acquired for scanning the business journals of the H & J Bakery from Schuylerville. There are records from the early 1920s. They show a business in our community from early Roaring 20's. What is interesting is that the records show the business adapted during prohibition by introducing Soda Pop to our community. These records show many routine purchases. People may find it interesting that for 25 cents you could purchase dozen donuts or a chocolate nut cake. This month I am starting to write for the New York History blog. The blog is devoted to historical news and views of the Empire State. I will join 13 other authors including the New York State Historian Robert Weible. My post will focus on Saratoga regional history, engage children in history, and heritage tourism. The next meeting of Heritage Hunters is Saturday, January 21 at 1 pm at town hall. The meeting speaker will be County Historian Lauren Roberts on online resources and the County Clerk's online sources for property records and censuses.
